The Foundation is a significant North Texas grantmaker. Part of being part of the community is discovering new places.

This photo is looking back at the North Corinth Street Road bridge, with the Margaret McDermott Bridge in the background. This location is in the Trinity River basin and is a scenic part of the city that is under appreciated. It is an out-of-the-way corner that has great views of Dallas.

One of the priorities of 2017 was reducing the loose dog population so that places like this are accessible to visit.

PRESIDENT'S LETTER

Every year as I prepare this letter, I am amazed by the work done by the organizations we were honored to support in the last year. 2017 was no exception. Since our inception, we have primarily focused on work that directly touches people in need; work with measurable outcomes that improves the lives of our neighbors. This summary lists numerous examples. We see that abused children are rescued, children have safe places to spend time after school, children with physical disabilities are healed, children and youth receive therapeutic services to address the effects of family violence, foster children are zealously represented by CASA volunteers, children with intellectual and developmental disabilities have opportunities for learning and their parents have opportunities for respite, and young people have the experience of scouting and camping.

But every year we also have to remind ourselves that we cannot be afraid to tackle hard problems with no clear answers. In many ways, the work of a private foundation should embrace risk and support innovative projects that come with promise but have long term time horizons and plenty of opportunity for failure. Hard problems require hard work to achieve hard solutions that cannot be achieved unless those who have time, resources, determination and commitment decide to weigh in. I want to highlight three of these problems and some of the efforts to address them that we supported in 2017.

The first relates to the care of foster children who have been abused or neglected and placed under the supervision of the state. Because each child's case is unique, finding an optimal solution is always a challenge. Compounding the problem, state agencies have faced leadership changes, chronic underfunding and overworked and underpaid personnel with the resulting high rates of turnover, all leading to inconsistent and in many cases inadequate outcomes for children. In the face of these challenges, one of our Fort Worth partners, ACH Child and Family Services, decided in 2014 to weigh in, accepting the responsibility to bring consistent high quality community based care to Region 3B under a pilot program offered in connection with the state's efforts to re-design foster care. Now, after four years, the systems developed by ACH have become a model for the state. Placements are becoming more stable, training of placement agencies and their respective foster families and caregivers are becoming consistent and state of the art, and services are being offered or developed in the most difficult cases. We are not at the finish line. Long term funding solutions still must be found and ACH must continue to navigate the ever-changing legislative and judicial landscape. But today we can see hope for improvement in the welfare of the children and families they are serving.

Second, we were challenged in 2017 by the problem of loose and aggressive dogs in Southern Dallas, compromising the safety and quality of life of the residents of this part of our city. The factors underlying this problem are some of the same ones we see repeatedly throughout our city; poverty and the lack of economic opportunity, inadequate access to basic services, limited transportation options, violence, and neighborhood decline. So, what can we do? In this case a unique partnership of civic and neighborhood leaders, city officials, funders and a group of service providers loosely organized as the Dallas Coalition of Spay Neuter Providers agreed to weigh in. They are now investing in Southern Dallas by offering local animal services including free spay-neuter surgeries, vaccinations and education on the responsibilities and benefits of pet ownership, communicating to the residents in these neighborhoods that their voices are heard and that the city is committed to helping them improve their communities. It will take time, but we are hopeful and optimistic that the hard work, persistence and determination of this partnership will succeed in bringing safer neighborhoods for families and the humane treatment of the animals that need care.

Third is the tragic reality of human trafficking and slavery that exists in many countries around the world. Our long-time partner, International Justice Mission, has been attacking this problem for many years. IJM's effort in India to eradicate human slavery is the most ambitious and long-term project we have seen. To most, the problem would seem insurmountable and therefore to be avoided. To IJM, it is one to which they are called personally and organizationally and therefore one to be tackled with courage, determination and strength derived from faith in God and a passionate desire to help the victims of violence and oppression. In this case, the timing and the means of achieving the results are still developing but slavery in India and around the world must be stopped. We are grateful to IJM for tackling this problem in India, and I am personally grateful to our founders and staff here at The Rees-Jones Foundation for their commitment to the task, even when the task is enormous and the project extraordinarily long-term.

As a Christian organization, we are mindful of the Biblical concept that all of us, rich or poor, successful in business or not, black, white, brown, educated or not, are made in the image of God, loved by him beyond measure and without condition and for whom he offers grace and forgiveness through the sacrifice of his Son. As such, we want to do whatever it is in our power to help – love – our fellow image-bearers. Jesus says "Follow me." The road may be hard, filled with potholes and unexpected turns, and we may not see the finish line, but our faith gives us confidence that the destination is sure. Praise be to Him and thanks for the privilege of walking along the way.

Thornton Hardie, President

FOUNDATION PROFILE

Founded in 2006 by Jan and Trevor Rees-Jones, The Rees-Jones Foundation is a private foundation that works with non-profit organizations, primarily in North Texas, to serve others and improve their quality of life and life circumstances in tangible ways.

The vision of The Rees-Jones Foundation is that the love of Christ is experienced in tangible ways by those in our community who are disadvantaged or who are suffering spiritually, physically, or emotionally.

The mission of the Foundation is to serve God by serving others, sharing His resources in ways that provide opportunities for the disadvantaged, relief for the suffering, and encouragement in the growth and well-being of children and families in our community.

JAN & TREVOR REES-JONES

After practicing oil and gas reorganization law, Trevor Rees-Jones entered the oil and gas business in 1984 as an independent involved in exploration and production. In 1994 he founded Chief Oil & Gas, which was an early operator in the development of the Barnett Shale field in North Texas and the Marcellus Shale in Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

Jan and Trevor established The Rees-Jones Foundation in 2006 out of proceeds from the sale of an entrepreneurial business enterprise and a conviction that God had blessed them as custodians of His resources. For Jan and Trevor the premise of the Foundation is straight forward: serve God by serving others, and in the process enable others to experience the love of Christ in very tangible ways.

Over the past 10 years, Jan and Trevor have guided the Foundation to be a leader in advocating for the children of North Texas, especially those who have been abused or neglected; working for the welfare of animals; and expanding the footprint of the Foundation's giving to include international opportunities and constituents. Their continuing desire is for the Foundation to be a catalyst for hope and renewed opportunity among those that it serves.

AREAS OF GIVING

The Foundation works to defend the welfare of children suffering from abuse or neglect, afford relief to those facing mental health challenges, provide youth with opportunities for enrichment and character development, encourage healthy families and communities, enhance the lives of children, youth, and families dealing with disabilities, and promote the humane treatment of companion animals.

The Foundation accomplishes its purpose primarily by partnering with the North Texas community of non-profit organizations through focused and relational philanthropy in the following areas of giving:

COMMUNITY BENEFIT
HUMAN SERVICES
MENTAL HEALTH
YOUTH DEVELOPMENT

In addition, by invitation the Foundation considers requests from Christian non-profit organizations working internationally in the Foundation's areas of giving.

Community Benefit

The Foundation selectively supports efforts that enhance the quality of life of North Texas residents, especially initiatives that help economically underserved communities. The Foundation also funds leading animal welfare organizations that are a resource to the community and promote the ethical and humane treatment of companion animals.

Human Services

The Foundation supports efforts to break the harmful cycle of poverty and abuse, and develop stability and wholeness in peoples' lives. This includes alleviating conditions that are harmful for families or place children at risk of maltreatment. A priority for the Foundation is protecting children and youth who have been abused or neglected and are in need of substitute care or adoption. The Foundation also supports programs that improve conditions for children and youth who deal with physical disabilities.

International

The Foundation selectively supports a portfolio of international projects. These projects range from surgeries for youth with injuries and disabilities, to water projects for remote communities impacted by insufficient resources, to justice initiatives for families impacted by bonded labor and forced prostitution. International grants are considered by invitation only.

Mental Health

The Foundation supports mental health services in the community that include increasing access to mental health care through counseling, therapy, and treatment, particularly for children and youth. The Foundation also funds efforts that enrich the lives of people who are living with mental illnesses or disorders by providing education, enrichment, and greater awareness.

Youth Development

The Foundation supports organizations that cultivate youth character and personal responsibility by providing intellectually and socially enriching experiences. With a focus on underserved youth, the Foundation is particularly interested in funding efforts that expand children's scope of opportunity and experience through education, mentoring, camping, and formative experiences.

“Over the years I have gotten to witness the incredible impact of the Foundation’s Community Benefit grants, and I have also gotten to experience first-hand the effects of this area of giving in my own life. My two black labs, Brady and Rocky, were rescued from the Humane Society of North Texas and the SPCA, respectively. These two rescue dogs have brought so much joy to my life that I know I will never be able to reciprocate, and I can only wish that everyone could experience that same love and companionship. The Foundation’s giving in the area of animal welfare makes this wish a reality as more animals are saved who in turn are able to improve the lives of people in need, through service dogs, therapy animals, and companion dogs and cats.”

“As cliché as it sounds, I have always wanted to make the world a better place, and I believe it can be accomplished by working to improve the lives of individual people, one by one. Thankfully, through generous giving by The Rees-Jones Foundation, we are able to help improve the lives of many people across the globe on a broad scale. This all-encompassing “human services” interest area includes helping people who suffer. Whether it be from abuse, neglect, maltreatment, intellectual and developmental disabilities, hunger, or homelessness... all people deserve the opportunity to have a healthy and whole life.”

“Investing in the lives of children and families around the world through international grantmaking brings me incredible joy. Too many people struggle desperately for access to clean water, to pay school fees, to have a lifesaving surgery, or to envision a better future for their children. By directing our giving towards these families in Africa, India, and Latin America, I believe that we are affirming their dreams and hopes for a better future, and telling people that their lives have intrinsic and eternal value.”

YOUTH DEVELOPMENT GRANTS

2017 Giving Profile	61 Grants	$5,735,000 Granted	$6,215,000 Paid

“As a former teacher for high school students in a large, urban district, I became deeply aware of the need for high-quality after school opportunities that nurture the whole child, not only academically but also socially and emotionally. So often, I found that families lacked the resources to pay for extra-curricular activities that were both meaningful and beneficial for their children. The Foundation’s investment in youth development programs reflects a concern for the welfare of children and young adults, and it reflects a value for the opportunity to reinforce learning from the school day, instill good values like responsibility and teamwork, and receive the support they need to be fruitful young adults.”

THE REES-JONES FOUNDATION

We want to serve God by serving others, and in the process, enable others to experience the love of Christ in very tangible ways ~ Jan & Trevor Rees-Jones
